As already announced, it was the intention of the ladies who accompanied the members of the American Team to visit yesterday the chief establishments of the city. In consequence, however, of the extremely unfavorable character of the weather during the carly part of the day the proposed inspection of our menster houses was postponed for the present. The ladies, however, took advantage of the occasional glimpses of sunshine to indulge in a walk through some of the principal streets.

Gov. Hendricks doubtless wishes he could be slightly smashed in a railroad collision so that, like Mr. Blaine, he could be forbidden to make any politica speeches for the next six months. There are loud calls or him to step over into Ohio and give the Democrats there a lift, but it is pretty certain be does not "hauker" to do so a bit. This backwardness moves The Eransville Courier, one of his stanchest backers for the Presidency, him in this way: "If he refuses to stand a the Ohio platform, he may as well look away from own State for support in the Convention. The man who repudiates the honor of the people, or says a word against the integrity of their indersement, may as well place his hopes for advancement on that world whose streets are paved with gold—the world's money—for he cannot have it here." Mr. J. S. Pillsbury, the man whom the Minblicans will probably nominate for Governor is said to have secured a great deal of his popularity by modesty. Mr. Levy, who has been afflicted with a sore in ever since his arrival, will bring out his cornet at the Hippodrome concert this evening.

It turns out that all the music of the two unpublished operas of Donizetti recently discovered is already familiar to the public, having been used by the composer in other works.

A remarkably interesting programme is to be given at the Central Park Garden this evening, including Rubinstein's noble Bramatic Symphony (entire), the Bach Ch. conne, instrumented by Raff, the 3d Hungarian Rhapsody, Bargiel's "German Dances," the Tristan and Isoide "selections, etc., etc.

The success of Lonengrin has been quite as marked at brury Lame as at Covent Garden. The best of the solo parts, by common consent, seems to have been the Ortrud of Mile. Titiens, to which all the critica ward the very highest praise. About Mmc. Nilsson's Elsa there is the widest diversity of opinion, and the Lohengram of Sig. Campanian receives only quantified commendation, having evidently been somewhat of a disapmendation, having evidently been somewhat of a disappointment.

The following criticisms by Verdi on Wagner's works and on German singers are contributed to the New Freie Presse of Vienna: "The conversation turning upon Wagner, Verdi remarked that this great genius had rendered incalculable service to inchedrational and rendered incalculable service to inchedrational and the contributed that this great genius had rendered incalculable service to inchedrational and the contributed that the service to inchedrational and the contributed that the distributed in the traditional antiquated forms. 'I also,' said he, 'have attempted to blend the nuisic with the drama, certainly in Macbeth, but I could not myselt write the libertic as Wagner does. Wagner surpasses all composers in the wealth of coloring in his instrumentation, but he goes too far in the form as in the manner. At first he successfully combated the realistic, but hate on he got further from that ideal poesy through exaggeration, and fell into the very fault, the task of anneliorating which he had originally proposed to himself. Thus the uniformity which he so victoriously attacked once more threatens to rule him.' With regard to German singing, Verdi observed: 'There is certainly no want of voices in Germany; they are almost fuller in tone than the Italian. The singers, however, regard song as a symmastic exercise, trouble themselves little with the formation of the voice, and aim only at obtaining a large repetiory in the shortest possible thac. They give themselves no trouble to bring a beautiful shading into their song; their whole endeavor is directed toward brugging out this sor that note with great power. Hence their song is no portical expression of the soul, but a physical struggle of the body."

The Dublin Express "trusts that the contest will be come annual, and if it should continue to be carried or with the same good feeling, not only on the part of the competitors, but on that of the speciators and of the two nations generally, which has marked the first two meetings, it will do much to cement the friendship of Ireland and America. To this Col. Gildersleeve has justly directed attention as the most valuable outcome of this rivalry of marksmen, and we hope the Irish six will spare no effort to give future meetings that interest which alone can insure their continuance."

Saunder's News Letter speaks in a similar strain and "Nor should it be forgotten, as slight extenuation of our failure, that while the American Team was selected from a nation of forty millions, who are familiar with the rifle from their cradle, ours was selected from a province of five millions, where, except in privileged cases, the use of the weapon is

PLANS FOR A BRILLIANT RECEPTION ON THEIR RE-TURN-A FUND FOR A TESTIMONIAL EMBLEM-

ADDITIONAL COMMENTS ON THE VICTORY. A Joint Committee of the Amateur Rifle Club and of the National Rifle Association, together with officers representing the First and Second Divisions of the National Guard, will meet this afternoon at 1 o'clock to agree upon a plan of festivities to be observed on the return of the American Team next month. The Joint Committee is composed of Col. Winga; e, Chairman; Gen. Shaler, Gen. McMahon, Gen. Woodward, Gen. Knox, Capt. Carey, and D. W. Judd on the part of the National Rifle Association, and of Messrs. Alverd. Johnson, and Crouch representing the Amateur Rifle Club.

One of the members of the Committee yesterday stated that it is the intention of the various rifle organizations sonal friends, but also by the militia and the people gen erally. The 12th and 22d Regiments have already offered their services. They will be joined by the 21st Regiment from Gosten, and the Second Division National Guard will be amply represented in honor of Gen. Dakin, its commander. The members of all the rifle associations of New-York and its vicinity will parade, and will be escorted by all the officers of the First and Second Divisions National Guard, in uniform. It is intended to charter the steamer Plymouth Rock and immediately to the Governor's residence in Gramercy

The procession through the streets, it is expected, will be joined by Gen. Sherman, the Governor of Connecticut, some members of the Cabinet, and other prominent persons. On the evening of the Team's arrival a grand banquet will be tendered them either at one of the armories or at the Academy of Music or some place at least where all the public bodies can be properly represented. Several prominent gentlemen have already expressed their intention to subscribe toward a fund for a testimoial emblematic of the victory achieved, to be presented to each member of the Team, and it is expected that several thousand dollars will be raised for that purpose. The great victory continued to be the topic of conversa tion yesterday among all interested in rifle shooting. All admitted that the Americans have won through their organization, and the wisdom of selecting this particular Team was dwelt upon at length. Even though the Irish might individually be excellent marksmen, as a Team the Americans could not possibly be better. Col. Wingate de-clared yesterday that the Americans were quite confident of success before their departure, and the last words Col. Gildersleeve spoke to him were, " Unless we have som

It is well known by the riflemen that Wimbledon is one of the most treacherous ranges in the world, that the sun simes directly in the marksmen's faces and that the ground is intersected by deep galleys, which create local currents of air very embarrassing to strangers, and still the rifle clubs here are satisfied that their representatives will smatch victory from the Englishmen who have been shooting there for years. It is quite likely that in one of the coming matches one of the reserves will take a place in the Team, so as to give them a chapter to show their ability, and in order to show the Englishmen that the victors of Dollymount are not the only good riflemen in America.

WASHINGTON'S HEADQUARTERS AT MORRIS-TOWN. OPENING THE FORD MANSION WITH A REVOLUTION ARY TEA-PARTY-CONTINENTAL COSTUMES, DECO-

A tea-party of the olden time was given yesterday by the ladies of Morristown, N. J., at the Washington Headquarters—a house built by Col. Ford in 1771 and occupied by Gen. Washington during the Winter of 1779 and 1780. This house remained in the possession of the Fords until two years ago, when it was offered for sale, and an association, in-cluding Senator Randolph, General N. N. Hal-stead, and others, and called the Washington Association of New-Jersey, bought it for the purpose of preserving it as a Bevolutionary landmark. The shares of the stock of the Association are sold at $100, but cannot be sold again, the title being made out to the male descendant of the possessor. It is claimed that the Ford house sheltered, from time to time, more of the faous men of the Revolution than any other building in the United States, Mount Vernon not excepted. Lafayette, Arnold and many others enjoyed, or are said to have enjoyed, Washington's hospitality while he was at Morristown. The Association have repainted the house, and the little repairing that was needed was made in accordance

One room was hung yesterday with "old and incomprehensible" pictures, retouched by Thomas Nast and presented by him. These are 13 in number, and are catalogued and explained. "Washington Crossing the Delaware "and "The Battle of Trenton" are the most striking. The former represents Gen. Washington scated on top of a wagon of "Delaware Ice." The water rises so high that only the cover of the wagon and the heads of the horses are visible. The battle scene is all smoke, and the explanation given is that "the battle of Trenton was said to be a good deal of smoke and very little fire, so that this is doubtless a truthful representation of that event."

The lea party given yesterday was on the occasion of the opening of the Headquarters to the public. The House and grounds were crowded, visitors being present from all the prominent towns of Central New-Jersey. The ladies managed the entertainment and Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Vanatta, Mrs. Randolph, Mrs. Whitney, Miss Julia E. Dodge, Mass Emily Ford, and very many others were present taking active part. City Chamberlain Tappan of New-York, Senator Randelph, Judge Vanatta, and Thomas Nast were among the prominent men of the party. The ladies were their hair powdered, after the manner of Martha Washington, and many of them were dressed in the style of a century ago. Silk gowns of old pattern, worked with bright flowers, were comment. Some of the young men present were Silk gowns of old pattern, worked with bright flowers, were commen. Some of the young men present were masqueroiding in curled, powdered wizs, coats trimmed with gold lace, knee-breeches and silk stockings, and one young man was dressed in the Continental uniform, and carried a sword. The supper was served in the old kitchen and dining room, while the lee cream and cakes were taken under tents on the grounds. Tea cups, decorated for the occasion, were used and sold. The proceeds of the party are to be divided between the licadquarters and the Morristown Lyccum and Library.

The annual une-ting of the Association will be held July 5, and the house will be formally opened. Addresses will then be made by Senator Randolph and others.

Commissioner Voorhis, Treasurer of the Police Department, said, yesterday, that the Police Com-ndssioners were fully in accord with the Mayer in regard to the reduction of expenses. Taxes are so high that, under the additional burdens of business depression, properly-owners complain bitterly. Many needed improvements are discouraged, and capitalists are afraid to invest in real estate unless at very low rates. The Police Commissioners believe that it is due to the tax-payers that they shall carry on the Department at the smallest possible expense consistent with the greatest efficiency. In the Police Department, however, nine-tenths of the expenses are regulated by law. Any reduction must be made in the clerical force, repairs and supplies, and the Street-cleaning Department. The estimates for the present year were Department. The estimates for the present year were made at a reduction of $100,000 on those of the year previous. Still, in making up the esti-mates for the next year, it is proposed to go over the expenses of the Department care-necessary, and whatever reductions could be made with-out impairing the efficiency of the Department or inter-fering with the progress of necessary improvements, would be made.

The Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments state that they have reduced the expenses of their Department from $251,600 in 1873 to $129,900 for 1875. They hope to make further reductions in 1876. It was only a short

The prop-erty was loaded upon two trucks and trans-ported to the Police Central office, The officers also seized $482 in greenbacks. After the prisoners had been locked up, John C'Brien called at the Police Central Office, and representing to Inspector Speight that he was a lawyer connected with Col. The de-scent was well managed by Detective McNamara, and no inkling of the officers' intentions reached the gamblers until they found themselves in custody. There is nothing that compares with it for Figurias, Dysentery, Choiera, and Choiera Merious. Used externally, it is an invalu-able internet for both man and beast. It is the people's friend, and all should keep it with them, in fact, so conveniently near that they can put their hand upon it in the dark, if need be, it is sold by all dealers in medicines.
